H B 51—to license selling by sample

Mr BUTLER asked unanimous consent to amend by changing section 1 so as to require licenses only of those doing business amounting to more than $10 000 per annum and reducing the license to $50

Mr STOTT objected to the amendments. He said this bill was intended to benefit those merchants who were living among us and paid taxes here. It is a fact that there is no class of people in the State of Oregon who pay so much taxes in proportion to their wealth as is paid by the wholesale merchants. Most of their indebtedness is due to persons living outside the State and they are not permitted to deduct it from their assets. The country merchant, who buys mostly within the State can deduct his indebtedness whereas the wholesale merchant after paying on the amount that the local merchant owes him is not allowed to deduct any indebtedness that he may have in San Francisco or New York. The result is that we will never be a commercial people while this state of things exist. We must build up our commercial interests or we will always be behind the times. Why sir one third of the people of the state of California live in San Francisco. California cannot maintain one third of her citizens in one city but Oregon Washington and Idaho can assist. And San Francisco is doing the business of this whole coast. People who do business in this State ought to help pay our taxes. California and Eastern merchants send their agents to this country and sell large amounts of goods without paying a cent into the State treasury. If they would come here bringing their capital with them and investing it among us foreign vessels instead of stopping at San Francisco will come to our own ports. The ships that to-day come to Portland in ballast would come laden; we would not only get goods cheaper but they could afford to carry off our productions at lower rates. We want goods shipped directly here that we may thereby get lower tonnage. Oregon will never be as prosperous as she ought to be until she ceases to pay this kind of tribute to other countries

Mr BUTLER said the gentleman had made a very elaborate speech which he did not know that he could answer. He could agree in his conclusions, however. He did not see what the question of shipping had to do with this bill. Goods must necessarily come here and in his judgment it made no difference whether they were sold by sample or in bulk they must in either case be brought here in vessels. His objection to the bill was simply this that in three fourths of the counties to require a man to pay so large a license would amount to absolute prohibition. It cuts off all competition. As to the people demanding this Bill he didn't see it in that light. This was a kind of protective tariff and it was the nature of such tariffs to protect a certain class at the expense of all the rest. Who pays that tariff? The consumer of the articles on which it is levied. This Bill cuts off that healthy competition which is the life of trade. Men are not going to pay $200 for the privilege of selling by sample in the interior counties

Mr GEARIN—I am surprised to see objection made to this Bill. I did not anticipate any opposition. I thought the House would pass the Bill as it ought, without attempting to correct or amend by reducing the [illegible] The gentleman from Polk (Mr Butler) tells us this is prohibition. Sir that is the very thing we want to do. We want to cut off this very trade and stop men going about and selling goods all over the State without paying a cent into the State Treasury. Suppose the wholesale business was entirely abolished, do you suppose this trade would help our State? Every cent of taxes paid by the men who sell goods in this way is paid in San Francisco. California has this same law. No foreign dealer can sell there without taking out license. We want to bring these men into fair competition with our own merchants, who pays our high taxes and our high rates of interest—who pays to the State far more than we ask of these California sellers: there can be no healthy competition now. A man cannot establish a wholesale business paying our taxes and compete with San Francisco merchants. The gentleman (Mr Butler) says the question of building up our commercial interests has nothing to do with this matter. It seems to me to have a good deal to do with it and the fact that vessels discharge their cargoes in San Francisco and come up here in ballast does cause our farmers to have to pay higher rates of tonnage in shipping off their wheat

On the question shall the bill pass the vote stood

THE RUNNING RACE

At 1 30 as was anticipated, created intense excitement and was witnessed by not less than 5 000 persons. Every available spot from which the race could be seen was occupied. A large number of leading families in carriages and buggies were present.

The race was two mile heats best two in three for $150. First horse to get $75 second horse $50 third horse $25. G J Baskett entered his b s Butralph, Daniel Young entered his s s Bill Bigham, W H Musgrove entered his b g Norway. Butralph got the inside track, Bill Bigham got the second place and Norway the outside. It would be difficult to convey a proper idea of the excitement that prevailed at this time, and the difficulty the Marshals had in clearing the track

The Judges were Messrs W Bigham, J Johnston and I Durbin. Mr Bigham was the starter and a better appointment could not be made. Mr Scoggin was the time keeper. After three foul attempts a start for the first heat was accomplished to the disadvantage of Norway whose trainer was not prompt enough. The result was that he was considerably in the rear all the heat. Butralph and Bill Bigham made a good start, ran side by side for the first quarter of a mile, Bill Bigham got to the front by a length and more and kept in the front until on the home stretch he was obstructed by one of the Marshal's horses that threw him out of his stroke. This gave Butralph an advantage and by a great effort passed the judges stand first by a neck amid the cheers of the crowd. The time made in the first mile was 1 56 and the heat 3 56

After resting thirty five minutes, the horses were called up for the second heat. Their positions were the same as in the first heat. A good start for all was soon made. The running race was grand, closely contested all the way, all of them keeping close together. Bill Bigham leading two thirds of the way so much so that the general impression was that he would take the heat but on the home stretch Butralph made another of his grand efforts and passed the judges' stand first by a full length amid the wild enthusiasm of the people. Bill Bigham contested the race in a manner worthy of his reputation. Norway made a good race in this heat and came in close on the heels of Bill Bingham. Butralph was declared the winner of the heat and the race. Time first mile 1 56 heat 3 56. In every respect the running race met the expectation of the public, which in point of good running and close contest and a large enthusiastic audience has never been surpassed at the State Fair

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY.

This department is well represented this year, and a large number of new implements have made their appearance which tend to show that the ingenuity of men still find room for invention in regard to labor saving machinery. The workmanship of many implements is excellent while others show that they have been studied out by men who understand the art of plowing better than tools to make a finished job in wood or iron, but they have succeeded in building their machines and make them do practical work

Mr F Smith of Portland, has on exhibition two buggies both open and top and certainly, exhibit as good workmanship as can be found on the coast; while several very important improvements have been added, especially in ironing the same so as not to weaken the axles by putting the bolts through the same. The commendable enterprise that Mr Smith has displayed, we understand, is being amply rewarded in your city. He will be awarded the first premium

E Rupe of Hubbard has on exhibition a wagon that will interfere very materially with the Eastern wagons for the first premium, as it is of good workmanship

The Capital Lumbering and Manufacturing Company have on exhibition several of their plows harrows drills &c, which are attracting considerable attention, and from the testimony of several persons who have used the same, we are assured that they have given entire satisfaction in every respect

A J Price has a new implement called the sword drill and I should judge, from its looks, that it would cultivate the ground as well as place the seed in the ground

Wade & Co have a collection of plows, harrows, drills &c, mostly of Eastern make but very interesting to examine

Knapp, Burrell & Co, have a large collection of wagons and of various styles but being unable to find any one to obtain information from I will call again to-morrow

T H Drewey has a machine branded grain separator but the owner was not present and I could not examine it as intelligently as I could wish.

Samuel Daws is busy explaining the working of a new grain separator which has several new features about it that certainly must be good

Hawley, Dodd & Co have a great quantity of machinery on exhibition consisting of lumber and express wagons, drills plows reapers grain separators, headers, saw and grist mills and a 10-horse power steam engine, the latter keeping several pieces of the machinery in motion and is surrounded constantly by a large crowd, who watch the working of the machinery with great interest. This engine is considerable of a feature and adds greatly to the interest of this department. The machinery this firm has on exhibition is good and reflects credit on their enterprise—only we wish they were made in this State.

T Cunningham & Co have Marsh's harvester and other machinery on exhibition of good quality which makes a good showing

After the examining committee goes through this department I will give the names of successful competitors

THE PAVILION

The department of bread cakes, &c looks like the preparation for a grand Fourth of July celebration, and the table is loaded down with specimens of the culinary art of the ladies. We are glad to note that many of the entries are by misses under 14 years of age

The dairy department seems to have received considerable of an impetus as there are numerous entries especially by ladies for the different premiums on butter. There are also several fine large cheese on the table, but will notice them again

GRAIN AND SEED

There were several more entries since my visit yesterday morning. Among the names I noticed those of F A Burkhart A. R. Wilcoxson J H Robbins and others but will go with the committee to-morrow

Zan Bros are on hand with a large lot of brooms brushes willow and wooden ware and other articles too numerous to mention—all of Oregon manufacture

C F DuBois is on hand with a fine display of furs gloves and other articles for the comfort as well as ornament, of the human family; and is doing a fine business, while giving encouragement to all who wish to prosecute the business of obtaining furs. He pays a liberal price for the same, and is becoming widely and popularly known

John Nation is with Mr. DuBois exhibiting and selling his wares of ivory carving, many of which are fine specimens

MISCELLANEOUS

C Condit has entered fifty pounds of corn meal of his own raising

Mrs. Condit has domestic made candles which will compare favorably with any of that class

Hubbard & Co boots four pairs, are of good workmanship

Smith, Champlin & Co have a large lot of boots and shoes harness and upper leather—all of Oregon make

Lake & Co have on hand a lot of superior Oregon made stoves both cooking and office. I am informed that they are giving universal satisfaction and attracting considerable attention as it is not generally known throughout the State that there is a stove foundry in Oregon

There is no lack of number or varieties of churns, washing machines and articles of that class and every owner insists that theirs is far the best and probably they are

Mr H Miller has a good collection of Oregon wood more complete than it was last year

J W Downer has a number of saddle trees and of good workmanship and if they are a sample of his general work he certainly is a good mechanic

D L Riggs is the inventor of a new fastening for cylinder teeth in thrashing machine drums

The ladies department of the Pavilion is literally crowded and it is impossible to make anything like a systematic examination until the different committees get to work. But that portion containing quilts, carpets, rugs and clothing is remarkably well represented, and many of the designs are beautiful

The side that contains ladies wear and fancy needle work, is literally crowded for room and it looks like an endless job to award the premiums

The Society's showcase containing the diplomas and silver ware is attracting considerable attention, and evidently has had the effect of causing a number of entries

T A Wood, the proprietor of the Museum at Portland, has added materially to the interest of the Pavilion, with a showcase containing seven hundred specimens in geology and mineralogy, and is constantly surrounded by a curious crowd

The photographic art is well represented by Messrs. Buchtel & Stolte of Portland F N Smith, and J H Catterlin of Salem while galleries can be found on the outside by those who wish to have their fleeting shadow preserved

FLAX

Messrs J L Smith & Co have on exhibition a sample of flax grown this season by M J Savage and Thomas Morsan. The quality is very superior and it is a pleasure to report the entire success of this new and important addition to the production and manufacture of in our State. We hope the time will soon arrive when these gentlemen will be able to finish the manufacture into linen and filling thread, and make us independent of foreign imports. Their mill is situated at the Oregon State Penitentiary has been running full time since harvest and has still three months work ahead of it although only put up and run as an experiment. The firm so far average 20 employes per day and as it is their intention to quadruple their production next season an estimate of the amount of money spent in their enterprise for the wages handling, and the thousand expenses connected with a factory of this kind can easily be imagined

Messrs Smith & Co have printed a card requesting the farmers in the neighborhood of Salem, who have land suitable for flax growing to try the experiment.

B L Stone is on hand with a fine display of stock from his extensive store in your city and has attracted considerable attention

At a late hour yesterday evening took place the much talked of

Baby Show

That had been inaugurated by F A Smith a photographer who offered the following premiums: The prettiest babe under one year old, a life size photograph and the next a dozen photographs card size. Most all of the persons on the ground supposed it was a sell but when the committee was appointed, consisting of James D Lory C F Yeaton and Eli T Perkins it looked like business. The exhibition was held in the oak grove on the northeast side of the Pavilion. The following named babies were entered

Bertha M Townsend age 5 months L Crump, 10 months J Cross 9 months James Fisher 9 months N Bybee 6 months, J Gilsan, 6 months L Barye, 11½ months B Price 2½ months, C M Buchanan 8 months C Buchanan 9 months G L Hewart, 8 months S M Durbin, 10 months, B Dimbler 7 months Rose Pike, 7 months D E Taylor, 3 months L Crooks 5 months G Lindsey 9 months W Roork 2 months.

There being eighteen entries in all. When the crowd found out that the show was really coming off there was a general rush for the Grove, and in a few minutes there were at least 4,000 people present, and as much interest and curiosity manifested as if it was a menagerie show. After about an hour the Bachelor Committee decided as follows: James Fisher 9 months old the first premium and L Crooks 5 months old the second premium. The committee we are happy to say made good their escape after announcing their decision. There is talk of getting up another show of the kind during the week

Accidents.

At 5 o clock a team ran away near the Woolen Mills but no one was hurt, although the runaway came near colliding with two or three hacks loaded with passengers. The wagon was badly broken and one horse seriously crippled.

A few minutes after [illegible] met, and the pole of one ran into the [illegible] of a horse of the opposite team killing him almost immediately

THE TERRITORIES

The gross receipts of the Olympia Fair were something in excess of $900—more than enough we understand, to pay off all expenses incurred

The Port Townsend Argus has word that a steam ferry will soon be put on between Port Discovery and Tukey's Landing, to be run by Captain Waite.

General Michler in charge of a party of surveyors left Olympia last Wednesday morning for the Chehalis Reservation intending to establish headquarters there and examine the Chehalis river as to its navigability

Mr Lambert while plowing in a field near Vancouver on Monday last had the misfortune to be run over by a frightened horse. Father Lambert's leg was broken, and being somewhat in years the calamity is quite severe.

Little Hannah, eldest child of Hon J C Hilleman, of Vancouver met with a frightful accident on Tuesday last. She ran to the wood pile just in time to receive on the back of her hand the full weight of a descending cord stick as it was thrown from a wagon which was being unloaded. The bones were all mashed and it is extremely doubtful if the hand can be saved

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 16, 1874.

WHAT ARE STATE GOVERNMENTS FOR?

At the risk of being thought by one sort of people impertinent, and by another sort ignorant, we venture to suggest the inquiry: "What are State Governments for? We make this suggestion not because we can perceive no need of such institutions, but because the subject appears to be one upon which people either have no definite and fixed views, or have every one his own peculiar view. It would be, to say the least, not an unnatural idea of the utility of State governments to suppose they were better adapted than the National Government to devise and administer all such laws and local regulations as directly and immediately affect the welfare of the people, and are not connected with those more general questions of which the nation has, and must have, the exclusive management. Indeed, we have been in the habit of assuming that something like this, with necessary amplifications, &c., was about the true and rational idea of State governments. But that is evidently a mere notion. It is a mere notion to the extreme partisans of what are known as State rights doctrines, because it is inconsistent with that kind of sovereignty in the States which reduces the Federal Union to a "rope of sand;" and it is the idlest mere notion in the world to the race of Republican carpet-baggers that have for some time been the rulers and destroyers of the South, because it implies that those in office have duties and responsibilities beyond and above the drawing of their salaries, the fobbing of their perquisites, the hiding of their stealings, and the plotting to perpetuate their own power.

A moment's reflection will show that the difference between our idea of the functions of the State Government and the ideas of either of the two classes of persons above described, is radical and irreconcilable. The folly and wickedness of the White League in the Southern States, so lately exhibited certainly gives color and plausibility to the assertion of the carpet-baggers and their Northern backers, that the old hostility to the General Government remains unabated and only waits opportunity to kindle anew the flame of rebellion. That such is anything like universally true, no thinking person is likely to believe; but, that those of whom it is true are active enough to control their party and noisy enough to seem to be the whole party, is unhappily the [illegible]. They are the controlling element in the Democratic party of the South; and, accepting no rational limits to State sovereignty, they are continually arraying themselves against the General Government, causing needless bloodshed and thus protracting the sorrows their country has already suffered too long.

Opposite these stand the carpet-bag rulers, a gang of adventurers and knaves, avaricious of power and pelf, without character or reputation to lose, and ready to do anything to continue themselves in office. Their loyalty is obsequiousness and their patriotism is love of power. There is some resemblance to heroism in the reckless devotion of the White Leaguer to his traditional ideas of superiority, albeit they were so long ago exploded. He clings to them and attempts to reinstate them as a controlling force in the destiny of his country, at his personal peril. But even this little cannot be said of the Kelloggs and Moses and Davises, who have fastened themselves upon the Southern people. They are the rulers of States, but they appear to have no conception of any obligations to anybody but themselves and their hungry crew of retainers. The State government for the people is but an instrument in their rapacious hands with which to get money and power. They devise no plans for the rehabilitation of the broken and distracted people whom they rule. They suggest no means of restoring the [illegible], re-establishing the industries or developing the resources of that beautiful section of the Republic. On all these matters we hear nothing from them. But the ears of the nation are filled with pleas for and defenses of themselves, and scandalous demands for help from the General Government to maintain them in power. The smallest ripple on the surface of society is enough to alarm them into a piteous cry for protection by the National Administration, as if there were not power in the State organization to execute its own police regulations. It is time this [illegible] of imbecility were ended. It is time something were done to bring to the front in the South men of character to inspire the confidence of the well-disposed and orderly people, and of nerve to put down Kukluxism through the agency that every State government affords, without stirring up the whole nation with their petty squabbles. And it is time for the General Government, as a means of hastening the needed change, to stop responding with such alacrity to the supplications of those cowardly adventurers.

That straight Republican paper the Pittsburg Dispatch goes after Butler, Carpenter & Co. about their Louisiana job, in a way those worthies dispise, no doubt. That paper is so devoid of that charity that thinketh no evil as to refuse to accept the explanation of Butler & Co.'s fee-taking, but retorts on the injured worthies that the explanation does them as little credit as the original transaction. The Dispatch should be made to understand that the Republican party does not stand any foolishness from its newspapers. It is surprising, in fact, that the example which the great and glorious party has just made of the New York Times, should have had no effect on the conduct of the Dispatch. If we had not been read out of the party ourselves we should be tempted to read the Dispatch out instanter.

People of Portland are feeling good generally over the passage of the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake Railway bill. Many think we shall see work begun on the road right away; at the early next spring. If the best wishes of an entire [illegible] is a sufficient basis to build a road—and they are no mean auxiliary—this road would be finished with the utmost possible speed.

The Washington Chronicle boast that it is "the only eight page daily South of Philadelphia." There is no particular need of any more—of the sort.

"COURT AND ATTORNEY."

The above is the caption under which the Walla Walla Union has been noticing the progress of a very singular quarrel which has likewise occupied the columns of other papers of that city to a considerable extent of late. The parties immediately concerned are Hon. J. R. Lewis, Judge of the First Judicial District of Washington Territory, and Thomas H. Brents, a prominent attorney of Walla Walla and well known in this valley and Eastern Oregon. After a careful examination of the facts as they are detailed by the Judge himself and by the papers that have attempted to give them, we can not but conclude the Judge has gone to the very limit, if not beyond the limit, of the law, and very far beyond the limit of propriety. So plainly is this the case, in fact, that we feel assured the Judge himself will think so; when, the heat of the strife being over, he sits down and looks back, dispassionately over the whole case.

The facts, succinctly stated, are: Some time ago Brents, as attorney for certain parties filed before Judge Lewis, a petition for his clients in a proceeding for voluntary bankruptcy, and procured an order of adjudication. Whether he or the Judge drew up the order does not appear; but the Judge says his custom was to allow the attorneys to draw their own orders in such matters, and he would sign them without particular inspection, trusting to the honor and skill of the attorneys for their correctness, and he thinks that was the case with this adjudication in bankruptcy. Mr. Brents, we understand, does not controvert this statement of the custom of the Court, and thinks it is likely he drew the order. Sometime afterwards a case came up in which the assignee of the bankrupt was plaintiff, and in which Mr. Brents' client was interested adversely. It was then discovered that the adjudication was defective in a very important particular, and its validity was, to say the least, extremely questionable; and thereupon the assignee moved to have it corrected nunc pro tunc. Mr. Brents, notwithstanding the adverse interest he then represented, felt himself precluded, in professional honor, from opposing the correction; and he consented at once to have the correction made, stating to the Court that he had never observed the defect before. But the Judge denied the motion, saying it was too late to make the correction.

Afterwards, in some litigation about property, the title to which depended upon this adjudication, Judge Lewis decided that the defect was fatal and the adjudication void.

Still later, a couple of months since, another case came up, touching property that had passed through the bankruptcy, in which Mr. Brents, as attorney, proceeded on the assumption that the adjudication was a nullity. This case was submitted to the Court, and taken under advisement by Judge Lewis. Brents, having a case to try at Steilacoom, was absent from Walla Walla some days, and during his absence the Judge rendered his decision, in which, after disposing of the legal questions involved, he took occasion to review in the severest possible terms, the conduct of Brents in taking advantage of the defect in the adjudication of bankruptcy, characterizing the act as disgracing the profession and Mr. Brents himself as a "shyster." This was all embodied in a written decision. The Judge was not in the habit of publishing his decisions, but this one was published in an opposition paper (both Lewis and Brents are Republicans), under a sensational heading, part of which ran thus: "Sharp Practice on the Part of an Attorney Rebuked." Brents read this paper just before reaching home. On his arrival he learned further that the Judge had been retailing the scandal on the streets and in private conversations. Naturally, he was not in the best of humor toward the Judge. But the two met on the street, and the Judge greeted the attorney with "Good morning, Brother Brents;" to which the latter replied in language more forcible than polite—hardly fit for the public prints, in fact—and by no means complimentary to the Judge.

At the next opening of Court the Judge filed a "motion of Court," requiring Brents to show cause why he should not be suspended from practice for using insolent and insulting language to a judicial officer, on account of matters decided by such officer in Court. It was admitted the offensive language was used on the street, and when the Court was not in session, and Brents, in his answer under oath, denied that his insulting and offensive language was on account of the decision of the question tried before the Court. But the Judge sat in his own cause, and, without admitting any evidence, found "of his own knowledge" that Brents' language was used not on account of the retailing of the story on the street, not on account of the personal attacks upon himself by the Judge, but on account of the way the case was decided. Thereupon he made an order suspending Brents from practicing before him at Chambers, but leaving him to practice in open Court as before. Such an order is a trifling matter, except in its moral bearings, but in that respect it can not be so considered.

The Walla Walla Union pertinently remarks that "the decision seems to be based on the theory that the Judge knew Mr. Brents' meaning better than he knew it himself." "After this order was made," says the Union, "Mr. Brents, in a very dignified manner, responded substantially that he claimed as much humanity, and as little divinity, as any other man that let his private opinion of the individual occupying the bench be what it may, he always aimed to demean himself with the utmost respect to the Court; that what he had said to the Judge on the streets was said of him as an individual, and not on account of any decision rendered by him; that at the last term of Court all the matters touched on in the decision rendered in the Overholtzer-Jacobs case, were brought to the attention of the Court, and that then no investigation was ordered; that afterwards, during Mr. B.'s absence from the Territory, the Court had taken the opportunity to assail his character, which was not involved in the trial of the case or the rendition of the decision. He seemed to hold that the discussion of the case under consideration did not require a discussion of his character, and that in so far as the Court pursued that course it was extra judicial, and thrown in to injure his reputation, out of motives best known to the Court—that that was a personal wrong and not a judicial act. He also said that although he was anxious to retain his position at the bar, his self-respect would not allow himself to retract his language until the Judge would retract and repair the wrongs he had inflicted on him. The sympathy of this community seems to be entirely on the side of Mr. Brents, and this unpleasant state of affairs has raised him up a host of friends. Immediately after the disposal of the case, the Republican County Convention elected Mr. B. as its Chairman, and elected him the first delegate to the Territorial Convention, and we are satisfied that he could have had any place on the Legislative ticket that he might have been willing to accept. Financially the decision will harm him; but socially he has been exalted by its severity and the course pursued against him."

It is announced that Parson Brownlow will shortly revive his Knoxville Whig as an Independent paper.

A correspondent of the Christian Union, who claims to be familiar with the past history of Chamberlain, the Republican nominee for Governor of South Carolina, considers him an able man, but doubts his claim to political purity. The writer says:

> While he was in college, truth compels us to add that his most eminent distinction of all was as a political intriguer. He was the most consummate master of all the politicians' ways that are dark and tricks that are not vain. We doubt not that he will make a better Governor than the illustrious Moses. But if any thorough regeneration shall be reached under such leadership, we shall be most agreeably astonished."

The anniversary of Mexican Independence was celebrated with becoming eclat on the 16th of last month. Among the ceremonies of the occasion was the reading of a message from President Lerdo, in which he gave a most satisfactory account of the condition of the Republic. Internal peace, he said, is becoming more firmly established, while the relations of Mexico with foreign nations are growing more cordial and intimate.

Wheat is 33 cents a bushel cheaper in New York this year than it was last year; but at St. Paul, Minnesota, it is only 9 cents cheaper than last year. The reason is in the price of transportation, which is 24 cents less this year than last. All through the Northwest the decline in value at the market is to a large extent compensated for by the reduction of freights.

Heretofore the State of Ohio was represented in the national House of Representatives by 13 straight Republicans and 7 Democrats. The result of last Monday's election is to change the representation to 13 Democrats and 7 Republicans. The Districts gained by the Democrats are the Third, Fourth, Sixth, Ninth, Eleventh, and Twentieth.

CITY.

DROWNING OF JOHN ANDERSON.—For [illegible] ing over a year a young man named John Anderson, a Norwegian, we believe, has been employed at Weidler's Mill in the Northern part of the city. He was a blacksmith by trade and was generally engaged in doing that kind of work at the mill. Sometimes, however, when not so employed he would assist in other work about the establishment. Yesterday about four o'clock afternoon he went out on the boom to help bring some logs to the foot of the chute on which they are drawn up into the mill. In moving about on the floating logs, Anderson lost his balance and fell into the river. A number of persons were near by on the bank and in the mill, some of whom saw him fall into the water, but before assistance could reach him, he sank out of sight and if he came to the surface at all he must have struck on the under side of the logs or boom, as no one saw him from the time he fell until the body was recovered half an hour afterward. Search was at once instituted and the body found in thirty minutes, but all attempts to restore the life so suddenly quenched was unavailing. The drowned man's remains were conveyed to the undertakers where they were dressed and laid out for burial, which will take place to-day. As the drowning was purely accidental it was not deemed necessary to summon the Coroner, and no inquest was held. The deceased was a man of very good appearance, correct in his habits, industrious and held in high esteem by his acquaintance for his kind companionable disposition and upright conduct. As far as we are able to learn he had no relatives in this State. His age was about 26 years. Thus suddenly cut off in his prime, he leaves behind him the bright epitaph of a good name. In peace may his ashes sleep.

STREET LAMPS.—It is reported by the parties having the contract for lighting the street lamps, that notwithstanding their efforts to keep the lamps in good order and to furnish the belated pedestrians the best light possible, some rascal without the fear of the law before his eyes, and in utter disregard of the Metropolitan Police, is in the habit of tampering with the street lamps by pouring boiled linseed oil on the wicks and otherwise obstructing the good intentions of the lamplighter so that he cannot obey the scriptural injunction to "let your light shine." The aforesaid lamplighter, however, threatens, that if he catches any one, unauthorized, interfering or tampering with the lamps he will make him see stars enough, without artificial light, if he don't let daylight shine clear through. While we would dissuade the contractor from violence to the extent of injuring any body on the spot, we would say to the scallawag who interferes with the lamps, "let us have light."

IMPROVEMENTS.—Though no great amount of blowing has been done by the press concerning improvements going on in our city this fall, there are nevertheless indications to be seen on every hand, of numerous though not generally costly additions to the wealth of the city and its people. The new Engine House of Multnomah Company No. 2 is nearly completed, the large brick livery stable, the first in the city, at the corner of Second and Taylor streets, will soon be ready for occupancy, four or five handsome residences on the block south of the Central School building, two neat dwellings on the south side of Washington between [illegible] and West Park, and a large number of others in various parts of the city, go to make up a portion of the very recent improvements made in our city.

LONE FIR CEMETERY.—A good deal has been said already about the want of taste displayed by the people of this city in leaving in such a neglected condition this home of the dead. The Advocate of this week adds: "To the quiet inhabitants of that lone city it matters not; but it does concern the living, whose duty it is to respect the dead by paying proper attention to their last resting place. In many portions of Oregon we have noticed graveyards shamefully neglected. This ought not to be so. Will not some of our people take hold of the matter, and see if the place cannot be made to wear a little more the appearance of care on the part of the living?

DECREASED VALUATION.—The County Assessor is about closing the assessment roll for the current fiscal year, and in a few days it will be ready to turn over to the Sheriff for the collection of taxes. The roll will show a total valuation of property in the county about $1,000,000 less than last year. While there is no doubt that some species of property are lower in commercial value than last year, the actual decline is probably not near so great as the sum named. The State Board of Equalization having been done away with, the other counties of the State will have to pay more nearly their just proportion of the State taxes with Multnomah.

Dwellers in the vicinity of Seventh and [illegible] street are of opinion that they have a right to make a noise about a cistern, or what was built for a cistern, at the intersection of those streets. This cistern was made over a year ago, but when water was turned in to test the work it all leaked out inside of twenty-four hours. From that time to this nothing has been done toward putting it in a condition to be used in case of fire. Certainly the matter deserves attention.

A FINE HACK.—L. B. Magoon now claims to drive the handsomest hack in the city, or that ever was brought here. It was built in New Haven for Mr. Elijah Corbett's livery establishment, and reached Portland by the last steamer. The price of the hack, delivered at San Francisco was $1,700, and we should say it is worth the price, if any such wagon is worth so much. At all events Magoon has a right to feel proud of it, for it is a magnificent turn out.

TARGET EXCURSION.—We understand that the Emmet Guard will try their skill at target shooting on the 20th inst. The sloop [illegible] Dublin will carry the excursionists to the grounds, which are hereafter to be selected. The Emmets can make their social affairs in and out of the city complete, and we feel assured the proposed excursion will be up to the standard.

WEATHER REPORT.—From the records of the U. S. Signal Station of Observation, Portland Oregon, October 15, 1874:

Thermometer	57°	65°	54°

TWO TRAINS.—As the number of people coming from Salem the last few evenings has been so great, the Superintendent of the Street Railway puts on two trains to connect with the ferryboat on which the passengers came to this side. Last night the two trains, one car each, were both completely filled and many people were compelled to walk home beside.

FOR LIVERPOOL.—The large British clipper ship City of Dublin, has been chartered by Jas. Laidlaw, and she will shortly be placed on berth, and loaded with dispatch for Liverpool direct. This City of Dublin is iron built, and has 813 tons register. Freight taken in lots to accommodate shippers, and advances granted if required.

HOSPITAL BUILDING.—The edifice being erected at the junction of Eleventh and M[illegible] streets, by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, for a hospital, is progressing nicely and will soon be enclosed and painted. It will prove ornamental to that part of the city, where quite a large number of residences are also being built this season.

COURT BUSINESS.—The trial of criminal cases in the State Circuit Court will be commenced some time during the fore part of next week. The petit jurors were discharged last evening until Monday at half-past nine forenoon. To-day and to-morrow will be taken up in the argument of motions, demurrers, etc.

TALK.—[illegible] talk here now about railroads. If talk was money we would soon have both the P[illegible] and Salt Lake and the Winnemucca [illegible] finished.

PHILOMATHEANS.—A meeting of the Philomathean Society of Portland will be held at N[illegible] Hall, corner of [illegible] and First streets, at the usual hour this, Friday, evening.

OUT-DOOR SPORTS.

The Statesman of yesterday says The College boys have agreed to accept Wm Barker of Portland as umpire for the game on Saturday next Anything to accommodate their competitors, and insure a game at that time

The prospective game to come off to-morrow at Oregon City between the College and Arcadians, will doubtless be played at all events It is more than probable that the Arcadians will not be able to play their full nine, by at least four men Capt McCraken will not be able to play at all, we learn Under these discouraging circumstances, the Club propose to play and present as strong a nine as possible

OREGON STATE FAIR.

Thursday—Fourth Day.

The morning broke rather foggy but the people were astir at an early hour while several families from a distance came in and camped upon the ground thus showing that the effects of the superb weather were encouraging people from a distance to come

The pavilion is now filled to repletion and the different committees are busily at work while the immense crowd of sight seers is crowding through demonstrating that the pavilion is far too small especially for a careful examination of the hundreds of articles on exhibition There is a constant uproar—noise on all sides—and in the pavilion where the pianos are constantly going the shouting of men extolling wonderful cures of medicines or the curiosities that they have to exhibit under canvas while the circuses theaters and panoramas have brass bands to add to the din

The Pavilion

Is a sight to see as an old lady remarked this morning while a very practical old farmer remark[illegible] that there was a sight of flower truck on exhibition and I will say as a passing remark that the floral department is certainly much larger than ever before And quite a joke is being told at the expense of the Superintendent of the department who is a leading job printer in Portland and is as follows As Mr Carey was unpacking a very large cactus that he had wrapped up and fit for protection the Superintendent asked "You brought that has along to feed it with did you" "Well all right Just lay it down there and you can use it when wanted" and at the same time he stepped to one side so as to be out of the way of the—well whatever it was in case of danger The crowd laughed and the gentleman immediately started down the hall, to escape the volley of remarks that was fired at him and it is said he has not visited that part of the room since

GRAND HOTEL, 7th October 1874.

DEAR BRADLEY Arrived safely having had fair average passage Set at once to work. First called on —— Paid them $2,500 on account. Got 3 per cent discount on $1 150 not yet due Mr —— seemed well pleased, said they had heard rather unfavorable accounts of us from Portland merchants, going ahead too fast, selling goods too low; ruined the trade etc. Explained the evident animus of such statements Wanted to call round on the other houses before buying but Mr —— would not let me stir—so started in and bought a splendid lot of stuff at really extraordinary low prices. Cleared out 63 pieces of English waterproof and ladies' cloth at 90c—regular price $1 20 These we must sell at $1 per yard and beat the wholesale houses they can't touch them at that figure. There is a temporary decline in cotton goods so secured 16 cases leading brands muslins and sheetings. Sell ing these as usual at cost will give us a splendid advantage over all the other stores. Got a fine lot Bed spreads 20 per cent. under regular price. In Blankets I made a special hit. The house had 12 bales on consignment and being agents for the —— mills did not wish to exhibit them in competition Bought the lot. You may think this rather stiff but when you see the splendid quality of these goods you will at once concede this a magnificent purchase Mark them low and make a noise. Do not let the country storekeepers gobble all these up as they did the last cheap lot Keep them for our regular customers Got two job lines in Dress Goods to sell at 25@37½ per yard—30 per cent less than cost of importing Secured two original cases of the Buffalo brand silk warp Alpacas at agent's rates These range in price from 25c to $1 The time is past with us for buying a piece or two Cleared out several job lines in Flannels Table Linen Napkins Towels etc all serviceable Also several other goods that can best be purchased at this house Dined and wined with Mr —— Splendid house magnificently furnished Met ——

Tuesday—Called early on —— Paid our account in full Same story as to reports The fact is, the —— evidently "went for us" in very blackness of heart but our name is a tower of strength that the shot of accident nor dart of chance can neither graze nor pierce The robbed that smiles steals something from the thief and we can well smile at these attempts to jostle a brother bearing his load on the rough road of life. The heavy cash remittances we make regularly stun them all here They say the Portland men are generally "long winded" Our getting the Granger trade is also a surprise to many Purchased a fine lot of Shawls Hosiery Men's Shirts Pants Ladies Merino Vests Woolen Jackets Trimmings and all fancy goods, at this house. They were most anxious to sell and as they made considerable reductions in prices I bought largely Send you invoices overland Goods go by John L Stephens The shipment from England will arrive by next Panama steamer The Clothing Hats, etc. from New York come by rail When all these are opened out our stock will be the finest on the coast. Will back us up to any extent He knows we possess the powers ordained to last. His business has doubled this year This is truly a Golden State, with its golden mines, golden grain and the golden wealth of living manhood and womanhood pouring in at the rate of three hundred daily from all parts of the civilized and uncivilized world. Would that we had railroads to enable us to share this prosperity S L MARSH.

FRIDAY MORNING OCTOBER 16 1874

THE WINNEMUCCA RAILROAD BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Let me in a few words reply to those vicious attacks and misrepresentations about this road, made by the Bulletin daily this week and if you permit me to do so, I guarantee before I finish this letter to satisfy the public of the honorable nature of every section of this measure

In June last I procured an introduction to a gentleman recently arrived from Europe and now settled among us and knowing that he had for years been the assistant attorney in one of the great railroad corporations of Europe and well conversant with the provisions which are made by the British Government for the honest management of railroads and protection of bondholders interests, and as he also knew the feeling in the European money market against American railroads as now conducted I asked his opinion and advice in the interest of Oregon, that we might have railroad connection with the East After many interviews with this gentleman, I became satisfied and convinced that if ever we were to get by railroad an Eastern connection, it could only be by the State of Oregon making such conditions as would put the contemplated road on the same bona fide principles as those now in operation in Europe and giving the bondholders entire protection as against the railroad company This explanation is the key to the whole provisions of the Winnemucca Railroad bill which the Bulletin is trying to misrepresent as got up for political purposes

From the moment that American railroads first mortgage bonds are issued to the bondholders their interests and those of the company become antagonistic This has been the experience of nearly all American railroad bondholders, and who when they resort to certain of our courts in the various States for the protection of their rights, actually find, I am sorry to say that even the judiciary has been bought in the interest of the railroad companies as against their own bondholders Consequently it is the duty of every State Legislature which wishes railroads to be built to uphold the bondholders rights as against the railroad company This is in one sentence all we seek to do by the provisions of the Winnemucca bill

The Bulletin says that the railroad company will control the politics of the State The reverse is the case. The powers in the bill to this company are made conditional only upon the bondholders interest being protected in the manner laid down by the State hence the State has by this bill as the guardian of the bondholders this railroad company in its entire power and can by law without the courts, at any moment, on failure of the company to implement the conditions it has come under to the bondholders, turn the whole railroad plant franchise, rights and lands over to those bondholders who built the road and are its creditors This is what all European Governments take power to do, and it would have been better to day for the financial reputation of the State of Oregon had she had that power four years ago

But even here the powers so conferred upon the States officers for the bondholders as against the railroad company are only optional to the bondholders The Bulletin forgot to tell its readers that by section 12 the bondholders could at any moment either before the bonds were issued or any time thereafter dispense entirely with the State's officers as their guardians, and put instead their own officers. I say the bondholders can do this as against the railway company which latter company is then the public will see, entirely in the power of the bondholders, so that practically, in all time coming the railway company (which I represent at present) can never become a political power in this State.

The State the Secretary of State s and State Treasurer s functions and powers if ever used at all by the bondholders to be exercised only at their request, and not the company How then in the name of common sense, can this railroad company ever control the State politics? Indeed the Legislature by passing this bill has forever stripped, and taken away from our railroad company (and would for the sake of the people that it do the same to every railroad company hereafter incorporated in Oregon) every shadow of political power in this State

Seeing then that the Oregon Central Pacific Railroad Company's political powers are taken away in Oregon, is it to be supposed that the bondholders resident in Europe, and having no other desire than to get their seven per cent interest paid punctually when due will interfere in the politics of the State? Certainly not and as they alone can order the State s officers as their guardians to enforce the conditions of the bill against the Company and will only enforce such conditions in the event of their interest being unpaid, it is absurd to say that either this company or its bondholders will ever be able to interfere in the politics of this State

This explanation will be satisfactory to the public as it has been to every intelligent Representative now in the Legislative Assembly of this State at Salem I remain your obd't servant

THE STATE PRINTING QUESTION

PORTLAND, Oct. 15, 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The Bulletin is suddenly anxious that the office of State Printer shall be abolished It argues that the prices paid the printer are outrageously high, and that the State can avoid these high rates by abolishing the office But the simplest way in the world by which to avoid the high rates paid the printer is to cut those rates down It is not necessary to abolish the office unless the service which the office was created for be dispensed with If the Legislature has not the intelligence to [illegible] a law or the honesty to do so by which the pay of the office can be made reasonable—as the Bulletin assumes then we admit that the office of State Printer had better be abolished and the entire legislative structure with it

I am opposed to farming out the public service by contract or any branch of it It is anti democratic and will work direct injury to the [illegible] When the public are rendered service for less than it is worth as may happen under the contract system you may depend upon it that the contractor will make up his loss in some way, more than this, such a system leads to fictitious or straw bids to combinations and rings and other devices by which the contract is finally let at a most outrageous figure The office of State Printer is one where it would be exceptionally difficult to apply the contract system For instance, among the different kinds of work to be done are composition [illegible] press work folding stitching binding etc Let us suppose that there are half a dozen bidders each of whom is lower on some one or two items than either of the others and higher on all the rest How is it to be ascertained which bid will be cheapest for the State? There is no way, since it is impossible to foresee what proportion of each class of work will be required The bidder who is lowest on a majority of the items may still be highest, upon some item which, as it shall turn out involves a greater expense than all the rest There can be no finer field for trickery than the contract system applied to this service would offer

There is no argument in favor of abolishing this office that will not apply to the offices of Secretary of State, City Treasurer and Sheriffs in the various counties If we are to enter upon a new system why not make it sweeping and let the entire government out by contract as the Shah of Persia is accused of letting his empire out to Baron Reuter?

I repeat, if we are paying the State Printer too much, let a law be made paying him less This is the proper solution of the whole question The people should fill the offices as nearly as possible and should affix to them a stated and just compensation It is to be hoped the State will never auction its service off upon the streets and highways or attempt to run its government by contract

CITIZEN

The Boise City Statesman says "The talk about a Reform or People s ticket for this county is growing more and more earnest every day Whether it will culminate in a vigilant movement is a question of some doubt. The time is short, and the party whip puts every timid man in the fear of a failure Could all who wish at heart to see an Independent ticket brought out, be assured of success there would be more voters for a People s ticket than would be left in both the other parties"

The active condition of the grain trade continues but the financial resources of those engaged in it seem amply sufficient to meet the demands which it makes upon them and no difficulty is as yet felt in local monetary circles in securing needed accommodations.

The State Fair doubtless has had some effect on the volume of trade in this market, the present week but yet it has been nearly or quite up to the average of the season

For the first quarter of the fiscal year 1874 75, there was coined at the Mint in San Francisco $9 099,000, of which $8,440,000 was in Double Eagles, $50 000 in $10 pieces $35,000 in $5 pieces $520 000 in Trade Dollars and $44,000 in Half Dollars. Compared with same time in 1873, the increase this year is $[illegible] 500 The coinage of Trade Dollars was commenced in July 1873 and in the three months ending September 30th 290 000 of them were coined —excess this year $290,000 Since the introduction of this coin the Mint produced as follows

July 1873	$42,000	March	$270 000

Small amounts of the same coin have been turned out at the Mints in Carson and Philadelphia.

The late Pork Packers Convention held at Gainesville New York, resolved that hereafter a barrel of Pork should consist of 190 pounds of green meat and from 3½ to 40 pounds of salt

During the month of October the Gold sales by the Treasury at New York will aggregate $2 500 000 Five sales were announced three of which have taken place. The others will be on the 22d and 29th instant

THE WINNEMUCCA RAILROAD BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Let me in a few words reply to those vicious attacks and misrepresentations about this road, made by the Bulletin daily this week, and if you permit me to do so, I guarantee before I finish this letter to satisfy the public of the honorable nature of every section of this measure.

In June last I procured an introduction to a gentleman recently arrived from Europe and now settled among us, and knowing that he had for years been the assistant attorney in one of the great railroad corporations of Europe, and well conversant with the provisions which are made by the British Government for the honest management of railroads and protection of bondholders' interests, and as he also knew the feeling in the European money market against American railroads as now conducted, I asked his opinion and advice in the interest of Oregon, that we might have railroad connection with the East. After many interviews with this gentleman, I became satisfied and convinced that if ever we were to get by railroad an Eastern connection, it could only be by the State of Oregon making such conditions as would put the contemplated road on the same honest principles as those now in operation in Europe, and giving the bondholders entire protection as against the railroad company. This explanation is the key to the whole provisions of the Winnemucca Railroad bill, which the Bulletin is trying to misrepresent as got up for political purposes.

From the moment that American railroads' first mortgage bonds are issued to the bondholders their interests and those of the company become antagonistic. This has been the experience of nearly all American railroad bondholders, and who, when they resort to certain of our courts in the various States for the protection of their rights actually find, I am sorry to say, that even the judiciary has been bought in the interest of the railroad companies as against their own bondholders. Consequently it is the duty of every State Legislature which wishes railroads to be built, to uphold the bondholders' rights as against the railroad company. This is, in one sentence, all we seek to do by the provisions of the Winnemucca bill.

The Bulletin says that the railroad company will control the politics of the State. The reverse is the case. The powers in the bill to this company are made conditional only upon the bondholders' interests being protected in the manner laid down by the State; hence the State has by this bill, as the guardian of the bondholders, this railroad company in its entire power, and can by law, without the courts, at any moment, on failure of the company to implement the conditions it has come under to the bondholders, turn the whole railroad, plant, franchise, rights and lands over to those bondholders who built the road and are its creditors. This is what all European Governments take power to do, and it would have been better to day for the financial reputation of the State of Oregon had she had that power four years ago.

But even here the powers so confered upon the State's officers for the bondholders as against the railroad company, are only optional to the bondholders. The Bulletin forgot to tell its readers that by section 12 the bondholders could at any moment either before the bonds were issued or any time thereafter, dispense entirely with the State's officers as their guardians, and put instead their own officers. I say the bondholders can do this as against the railway company, which latter company is then, the public will see, entirely in the power of the bondholders, so that practically, in all time coming the railway company (which I represent at present) can never become a political power in this State.

The State, the Secretary of State's and State Treasurer's functions and powers if ever used at all by the bondholders to be exercised only at their request, and not the company. How then, in the name of common sense, can this railroad company ever control the State politics? Indeed the Legislature, by passing this bill has forever stripped and taken away from our railroad company (and would, for the sake of the people, that it do the same to every railroad company hereafter incorporated in Oregon) every shadow of political power in this State.

Seeing then that this Oregon Central Pacific Railroad Company's political powers are taken away in Oregon, is it to be supposed that the bondholders resident in Europe, and having no other desire than to get their seven per cent. interest paid punctually when due will interfere in the politics of the State? Certainly not, and as they alone can order the State's officers, as their guardians, to enforce the conditions of the bill against the Company, and will only enforce such conditions in the event of their interest being unpaid, it is absurd to say that either this company or its bondholders will ever be able to interfere in the politics of this State.

This explanation will be satisfactory to the public as it has been to every intelligent Representative now in the Legislative Assembly of this State at Salem. I remain, your obd't servant.

B. J. PENGRA.

THE STATE PRINTING QUESTION.

PORTLAND, Oct. 15, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The Bulletin is suddenly anxious that the office of State Printer shall be abolished. It argues that the prices paid the printer are outrageously high, and that the State can avoid these high rates by abolishing the office. But the simplest way in the world by which to avoid the high rates paid the printer is to cut those rates down. It is not necessary to abolish the office unless the service which the office was created for be dispensed with. If the Legislature has not the intelligence to make a law or the honesty to do so, by which the pay of the office can be made reasonable—as the Bulletin assumes then we admit that the office of State Printer had better be abolished and the entire legislative structure with it.

I am opposed to letting out the public service by contract, or any branch of it. It is anti-democratic and will work direct injury to the public and [illegible] interests. When the public are rendered service for less than it is worth as may happen under the contract system, you may depend upon it that the contractor will make up his losses in some way, more than this, [illegible] system leads to fictitious or straw bids, to combinations and rings and other devices by which the contract is finally let at a most outrageous figure. The office of State Printer is one where it would be exceptionally difficult to apply the contract system. For instance, among the different kinds of work to be done are composition, [illegible] work, rule and figure work, [illegible] work, press work, folding, stitching, binding, etc. Let us suppose that there are half a dozen bidders, each of whom is lower on some one or two items than either of the others and higher on all the rest. How is it to be ascertained which bid will be cheapest for the State? There is no way, since it is impossible to foresee what proportion of each class of work will be required. The bidder who is lowest on a majority of the items may still be highest upon some item which, as it shall turn out, involves a greater expense than all the rest. There can be no finer field for trickery than the contract system applied to this service would offer.

There is no argument in favor of abolishing this office that will not apply to the offices of Secretary of State, State Treasurer, and Sheriffs in the various counties. If we are to enter upon a new system, why not make it sweeping and let the entire government out by contract, as the Shah of Persia is accused of letting his empire out to Baron Reuter?

I repeat, if we are paying the State Printer too much, let a law be made paying him less. This is the proper solution of the whole question. The people should fill the offices as nearly as possible and should affix to them a stated and just compensation. It is to be hoped the State will never auction its service off upon the streets and highways or attempt to run its government by contract.

CITIZEN.

The Boise City Statesman says: "The talk about a Reform or People's ticket for this county is growing more and more earnest every day. Whether it will culminate in a vigilant movement is a question of some doubt. The time is short, and the [illegible] fear of a failure. Could all who wish it [illegible] see an independent ticket brought out, be assured of success, there would be more voters for a People's ticket than would be left in both the other parties."

The active condition of the grain trade continues, but the financial resources of those engaged in it seem amply sufficient to meet the demands which it makes upon them, and no difficulty is as yet felt in local monetary circles in securing needed accommodations.

The State Fair, doubtless, has had some effect on the volume of trade in this market, the present week, but yet it has been nearly or quite up to the average of the season.

For the first quarter of the fiscal year 1874-75, there was coined at the Mint in San Francisco $9,099,000, of which $8,440,000 was in Double Eagles, $50,000 in $10-pieces, $35,000 in $1-pieces, $520,000 in Trade Dollars, and $54,000 in Half Dollars. Compared with same time in 1873, the increase this year is $7,621,500. The coinage of Trade Dollars was commenced in July, 1873, and in the three months ending September 30th 290,000 of them were coined —excess this year, $230,000. Since the introduction of this coin the Mint produced as follows:

July, 1873	$ 42,000	March	$270,000
August	117,000	April	275,000
September	137,000	May	366,000
October	98,000	June	259,000
November	115,000	July	158,000
December	200,000	August	191,000
January, 1874		September	271,000
February	270,000
Total			$2,741,000

Small amounts of the same coin have been turned out at the Mints in Carson and Philadelphia.

The late Pork Packers' Convention, held at Gainesville, New York, resolved that hereafter a barrel of Pork should consist of 190 pounds of green meat and from 35 to 40 pounds of salt.

During the month of October the Gold sales by the Treasury at New York will aggregate $2,500,000. Five sales were announced, three of which have taken place. The others will be on the 22d and 29th instant.

[illegible]

Science cannot [illegible] never has [illegible] and never can demonstrate the non-existence of a God. As a hypothesis, that always [illegible] place. Science tends to deny this. It [illegible] disproves it. However deep it goes, it cannot [illegible] everything into hypothetical atoms, undiscoverable, never found, impossible to be [illegible] upon by any proper test. It affirms the correlation of forces, showing how motion is arrested, for example; is transmuted into heat, and heat certainly conducts to light and electricity. It affirms the persistence of the force it thus infers, and thus its destruction. It hints, suggests, not affirm the identity of the animal force in man which operates in [illegible] nature. There is a tendency with some to believe that all forms of vegetable or animal life have arisen by evolution from one or a few primordial germs, under the law of natural selection. It sometimes appears to threaten to make the affirmation of a personal god unnecessary, to exclude him from the universe which he is supposed to govern. But science has never [illegible] that light or lightning or other force can be identified with the power in [illegible] and psychology are too still. [illegible] forces, science has, after all, to face the question whence they come.

[illegible] It does not follow that sorrow is salt water. If [illegible] is phosphorus, God is phosphorus, and one may carry Him about in his pocket. No; back of the force, the germ, the atom, is its origin, and the scientists, rejecting the schoolmen, end in the great saying of the schoolmen [illegible] of the force of the germ? How are the atoms to be astir? Let us consider the argument for a God.

An Iowa editor, in a criticism on one of his brethren of the quill, who had denounced him as a liar, says that he writes in full view of the fact that ere long he may be flopping his angel plumage among the lazy saints who loaf around that throne where "a white man's government" is unknown, and where editors who tramp the golden pavements never indulge in maudlin effusions.

In response to the request of Mr. Touzalin, the general land agent of the [illegible] road, for the products of the country along the line, a character around Hutchinson, Kan., or one of those towns, boxed up a bushel of [illegible] hop[illegible] and sent them to him with [illegible] explanatory note: "Here's the products of your damned country—a hundred bushels to the acre."
